NOTE: It is believed this is a close up picture of the published "View of Largo Canyon drainage with Refugee ruin in foreground." In the second edition, reference is shortened to Largo Canyon. The ruin is believed to be Shaft House Ruin (LA#5660) which is the "most interesting of the Refugee Sites surveyed in Crow Canyon, perhaps the most outstanding of the Gobernador-Largo" region. Unpublished photo 25c is believed to be interior shot of Shaft House ruin's shaft which was a defensive structure built around an existing ladder. It is probable that Kernberger would have selected such a site over less impressive Refugee ruins.

1	47 a-f	Published	Southern NM			RA in NM 1st ed RA in NM 2nd ed	68 66	82 55	“Saddle Site?” (Published photos 47a & b show these “Red curvilinear motifs west of Silver City.”) LA# 72181 is believed to be incorrect since it refers to a late Archaic lithic reduction site and makes no mention of rock art. 1	56	Published	Southern NM	5230	LU-3	IRA of SW	After Fig 158	205	"Tadpole, Cooks Peak, NM" This is also presumably by Curtis Schaafsma. NOTE: LA #5376 on back incorrect; figure is located in the Pony Hills folder by Mary Alice King, who surveyed area in Nov 1970 and took before/after pictures using an aluminized technique. Polly Schaafsma visited this site and La# 5376 (Cooks Pass rock art site) on 09.21.1971, so her photos appear more faded. The latter site is in Frying Pan Canyon, which is 3-4 miles east of Cooks Peak.
